About NPDCSNJ:

In the business of "doing good," the question of what it takes to be a great organization is often unasked and unanswered. Executive directors must be resourceful in meeting the needs of their constituents, generating enough income to keep programs running and accomplish all of the above while keeping board members engaged and informed. Board members often feel stymied by the pull of fund-raising and operational demands that distract them from their passion of "making a difference" in the community.

Corporate leaders and individual philanthropists make generous investments in nonprofit organizations that serve a diverse group of people and institutions. Yet, a sizable portion of their contributions often funds overhead expenses. The Nonprofit Development Center (NPDCSNJ) of Southern New Jersey provides ideas, resources and training for nonprofit executives, staff and board members. It was formed to increase donors' "social return on investment" and to stimulate new sources of philanthropy in this region.

The NPDCSNJ is a product of the cooperation and leverage of resources from nonprofits, businesses, government and higher education.
